Checking the status of your manuscript on ScholarOne: A Guide

If your manuscript reference is in the format of TANDF-2011-##### where the first alphabetical letters are the acronym of the journal, then you submitted your manuscript to a journal that uses ScholarOne Manuscripts for its peer review.

You can view the status of your manuscript, and contact the journal Editorial Office in your Author Centre on the ScholarOne site.

Submission Confirmation:

Correct submission of your manuscript to a ScholarOne Manuscripts journal site immediately presents a Submission Confirmation page. Your manuscript ID number is displayed here:

!Submission Confirmation

Your manuscript ID reference number is unique to your submission. Please mention the manuscript ID assigned to your paper when contacting the Editorial Office for any questions.

The journal will also send you an email confirming your manuscript ID reference number, which you can keep for your records:

!Email Confirmation

Viewing the status of your manuscript:

!Author Centre

You can view the status of your manuscript in your Author Centre.
You can also contact the journal Administrator directly if you have a question about your submission.

“My Manuscripts” shows the status of all papers you have submitted to this journal.

Click on the “Submitted Manuscripts” link to see the ones in peer review.

This will direct you to the status of your manuscript.

You can click on the Administrator’s name to send an email to the journal.

The email will appear in a pop-up screen, pulling in the details of your manuscript. You can edit the email and send it to the journal:

If you have any questions, please contact our Author Queries department. When emailing our Author Queries department, it would help us to know the name of the journal, the title of your manuscript, and the manuscript reference number. This will help us to locate the manuscript for you.